- Is the Criminal Justice System Broken?
- There's work to be done. Laws are meant to protect society. Not to be used by those with bias to discriminate or oppress.
- We must challenge not only government, but we must challenge ourselves and each other to work toward change.
- What's the next step?
  - Faith in one's self; faith in the rule of law.
  - It must be about more than just you. We need each other to succeed. It is your job to help maintain the balance of the scales of justice.
  - Success requires that you do things for others, even for those that don't ask for help or are afraid to ask. Success in the legal field requires you to maintain harmony of representation of your clients, your status as an officer of the court and as a public citizen.
  - Be courageous! You have to make an effort to choose the harder right versus the easier wrong. It's easier to ignore discrimination when it's not imposed upon you.
  - It's not too late to reevaluate your use.

Presenter: Phillip Tyler - President, Spokane NAACP
